CHAPTER 9: LITIGATION SUPPORT SOFTWARE

QUIZ

True/False

Indicate whether the statement is true or false.

1. Litigation support software assists attorneys in responding to requests for electronically stored information.
   ANSWER: F

2. Interrogatories, requests for admissions, requests for production of documents, and depositions are examples of discovery documents.
   ANSWER: T

3. The purpose of litigation support, whether through manual or computerized methods, is to organize the litigation/factual documents and knowledge in a case so that they are useful to the attorney.
   ANSWER: T

4. Manual litigation support is tedious, time-consuming, facilitates entering as few documents as possible, can produce only simple searches.
   ANSWER: T

5. A document abstract system uses the text of documents for searching and querying text.
   ANSWER: F

6. Real-time transcription can be used in a full-text retrieval system.
   ANSWER: T

7. Document summaries are entered into an imaging system.
   ANSWER: F

8. Litigation support service providers have many advantages; the main disadvantage is the cost.
   ANSWER: T

9. Bibliographical coding requires extensive knowledge of the case.
   ANSWER: F

10. A full-text retrieval system can be used with the electronic discovery of documents.
    ANSWER: T
11. Analytical litigation support helps legal professionals analyze a case from different perspectives and can create cause and effect relationships between facts and evidence in a case.
ANSWER: T

12. Integrated litigation support systems focus on document abstracts.
ANSWER: F

13. The coding of documents in a document abstract system is crucial to whether the database will be useful.
ANSWER: T

14. Boolean logic searches scan a database, searching for words to include or exclude.
ANSWER: T

15. A proximity search scans a database for derivatives of a word.
ANSWER: F